Comments: Saxby all Saints is within a conservation area. The street view is of a number of estate cottages that have changed very little. 61 Main street is one of a few left that has not been fiddled with apart from having the roof raised early in the last century. This planning proposal will completely remove any evidence of the original building.

The proposed building is over twice the footfall of the original.

The walls are to be rendered. Very few houses in Saxby are rendered most are brick painted in buttermilk.

The gable ends are to be changed to dutch style ends, some houses are Dutch style with the brickwork exposed to show its intricacy, others are as the house already has.

The windows are to be enlarged and changed from the original slides.

The proposed build is in essence a new build and the destruction of a period estate cottage.
